Dear Patients,

As I have shared with many of you over the past 12 months, I will be retiring at the end of May 2023. As I think back to opening Northeast Endocrinology 36 years ago, I am so thankful for the opportunity I have had to be your physician. Throughout my career with Northeast Endocrinology there have been numerous changes in medicine, advancements in the field of endocrinology through research/development and many wonderful experiences with my patients. It has been my honor to be your physician and I hope the transition to a new physician goes smoothly.

I have also been fortunate to have been the first principal investigator with Northeast Clinical Research beginning 15 years ago. Many of you have participated in clinical trials for diabetes care, weight loss, lipid lowering, and metabolic wellness, and these trials will be continuing after my retirement. This is incredibly important in continuing the advancement of endocrinology research and development.

In closing, it has been my privilege to work with so many wonderful patients over the years. Best wishes for a healthy future to all of you.

Laura Akright, MD
